The decline had started. Stanley Dvorak, of Norristown, purchased Stotesbury Mansion for a reported $350,000. A low-budget rock horror film was made on the premises. The gardeners were let go and the formal gardens disappeared into weeds. Even after Kevy K. Kaiserman and George W. Neff purchased it in 1969 for $700,000, vandals and arsonists favored the location.

Stotesbury is in ruins. Kaiserman and Neff have fought several court battles to develop the property. 1977 saw a new set of plans to construct 183 housing units, which would involve razing the mansion, although the woodland surrounding it would be preserved. A 1978 zoning change points to the ultimate destruction of the historic mansion.

The neighbors of Stotesbury Mansion feel nostalgic to the gargantuan structure that overlooks their backyards. Many of them have lived nearby for years and have watched the place deteriorate. One neighbor, Karen Marshall sighed, "It used to be beautiful and now look at it — it's horrible." Contrary to rumor, no wild dogs live at Stotesbury, although pheasants, rabbits, and other wildlife have been spotted by area residents.

For the adventurous, Stotesbury may be reached by turning right on Cheltenham Avenue (by Korvettes) and proceeding about 1.4 miles to a left turn on Delphine Road. At the bottom of the hill, two white posts mark the entranceway. But be careful — the police patrol the area regularly, and trespassers may be arrested and fined anywhere from $50 to $325.

It's worth it though. Anyone who can see past the crumbling walls and gutted interior will agree with Henry Ford who said after a visit, "It was a great experience to see how the rich live." Permits a playwright to succeed, sight of the utterly ridiculous instance: an organ which rises and falls in front of center stage. Approximately 12-foot organ also serves as a picture. The photos of Karl Marx and Lenin which leaves the hallways of the villa, an estimated $100,000, walks on stage. Toilet tissue for the toilet.

federal funds. President Jimmy Carter replied that he had no intention of removing subsidies that enabled "so many hardworking families to earn a living." Approximately 600,000 farmers in the United States depend on tobacco for a major part of their livelihood.

"If the government can spend $250 million to combat a nonexistent disease like the swine flu," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Ralph Nader-affiliated Health Research Group, "then it should spend at least that much on smoking."

The secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), Joseph Califano, has launched an anti-smoking campaign. Califano calls his $23 million program "the most vigorous program against smoking this country has ever seen."

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) believes that the government is responsible for warning Americans of the health hazards of smoking. In 1964, the Surgeon General's report on smoking was issued. By 1969, anti-smoking messages appeared on the television screens. But in 1971 they were removed from the air, along with cigarette ads. The FTC is now reinstating the anti-smoking messages.

Let The Bells All Ring. Murphy Clock Chimes Again

In response to recent criticism in last week's Beaver News where students accused guards of being intoxicated on duty, Beaver's Maintenance Director John West vehemently denied such allegations. "None of guards drink," West said. "Most of the drink complaints you hear now just a carryover from semester when there guards who drank on But," West added, "the gone now."

Glenside, PA (UPI) - The class of '81 made the first of what was to be thousands of treks to the Business Office (No, sorry, you have to go to Student Affairs'') in September 1977.

After the business was taken care of it was time for fun. Lenny's discos were exciting, especially under water. After the Chat dried up it was time for the foot-stomping, yee-haw Blue Grass parties. The Chat carpeting was wet again - this time from beer. The newly opened game room had a nice christening of its own right.

We did some school work that year - remember Mama Rat? How about the fetal pig? Or Freshman English and the plays at the Walnut Street Theater - "Uncle Vanya" and "Travesties." Who knew the balcony was that high? But we became "cultured."

It was fun living in the dorms, especially after Freshmen skits were over. Where else could you find something new to wear in the comfort of your own home? But we weren't the only ones living in the dorms: Dilworth seemed to have a population of tiny critters living on the residents. But the soap was so nice to use!

Sophomore year showed the dorms with some new inhabitants - those small, furry rodents, the Dilworth/Thomas rats. Maybe Mama Rat should have been done in your own room.

Besides trying to get rid of the rats the Beaver Boys were also busy defending the dorm damsels against those nasty LaSalle men. Alas, the end of the party raids. And who was the laundry room assailant anyway?

The events were always recorded for posterity through Mike Kirby's "Bits and Pieces" - did your parents subscribe? If they did they were also comforted in the fact that we were so safe on campus. While the "Flasher" and the "Glenside Rapist" were prowling around, security was smashing jeeps into trees and buildings. Somebody tried to freeze them in time - remember the snow-filled jeep?

Some new things happened that year, too. The campus elected its first male president of SGO - at the same time that they reenacted the Animal House Toga Party; was there a connection.

After the girls Tennis Team won the league championship and the Soccer Team went undefeated - indeed, after anything, there was always a party on the Spring Garden hall on Kistler First South. Yes, Mr. Daniels was always present.

The wild "Garden Parties" were changed to a new location when Heinz went co-ed our Junior year. Even Westminster invaded the previously all women's dorm as "Heaven" moved to Second North. Not everyone was lucky enough to have a dorm room to live in: Mert settled for a tent on Dilworth's lawn. Meanwhile, inside Dilworth the guys were rating the girls that walked across campus; did they find the perfect "10"? Downstairs the Chat was getting a facelift, only after "Chuck the Chat" buttons became a part of everyone's wardrobe.

Blake Hall was changing, too. It became the Student Activities Center. Then Heinz became the home of other activities when the Universal room opened --- and the biceps began to bulge. Is that why we had two sports championships?

The changes were never-ending. Dean Landman could no longer let her hair fall for Mr. Beaver and Miss Jean Francksen retired after many years of successful teaching. While the castle masquerade parties were hopping all night long the newly-repaired Murphy clock chimed away the passing hours.

Our Junior year ended with a bang - and a flame. The last band party of the year ended when flames shot into the midnight sky. Dilworth was on fire. Many rooms, lounges and hallways were charred; Kistler was immediately transformed into a coed dorm.

Surprise, surprise - we're finally seniors! But the beer is not flowing so smoothly. This was the year of dodging the new alcohol policy with "beer balls" and smuggled kegs. What an increase in the number of private T.G.I.F. cocktail parties - any day of the week.

Celebrations were held for many (and any) reasons. Beaver College celebrated the Phillies' World Championship in a sea of beer. Easton Road motorists were reminded of the victory by a seemingly endless line of cheering Beavers who stood along the Easton Road wall.

Linda and Spock's "wedding" and cafeteria reception were more good reasons for celebration. At the Halloween party in Murphy we saw many effects of the new coed hall: why were so many of Beaver's men dressed in women's clothes? Everyone recovered and even relaxed when Second West Heinz opened up a coed massage parlor. Yes, we knew how to relax!

Who could ever forget the personalities that brought us so much joy? What would breakfast have been like without Dr. Hazard whistling while sitting at the next table? Or Mark Steward playing football outside in the snow - without a shirt? Has anyone ever asked the real Director of Student Affairs to stand up - you know, the real Gale What's-her-name?

What would a day have been like without finding the Business Office closed, getting yelled at by Tom in the Chat, hearing Bird's announcements at lunch, seeing Benny with another girl, getting attacked by Randy, or not finding an article on reserve? What will happen to everyone? Will "Senator" Stein be our next President? Will Yale be his private doctor? Will Joe rebuild the White House? Will Lance tour the pro tennis circuit; will he always be a Freshman Orientation Leader?

Change. It will always redesign the world as we have seen it change the face of Beaver's campus. Since we arrived we've seen the enrollment of men almost double. Bird created NORML and Woodstock while Mert formed the Outing Club. The birth of Mr. Beaver spawned a new era of traditions on campus. Our Mr. Beaver's - Al, Bird, and Mark - will be recorded in history, as will be the winners of the Academy Awards. Beaver now has a new bus, a new flag, and a new face thanks to Linda's artwork.

We'll never forget New Wave and Punk music, President Carter, No Nukes, the Glenside Pub, Star, Bozo, Preppies, Mork & Mindy, Animal House, discos, Iran, the presidential election, the "me" generation, and 8:30 classes.

Despite change, some things will always stay the same. There will always be parking tickets, snowstorms, the Annual Beaver/Spring Garden Football game, Christmas decorations, the castle lawn - in the winter - in the spring, Dr. Hazard's office, Camp Akiba, "flushing", Dr. Johnston's parties (Soc 269), gym credit, HoJo's, Beaver Beach, senior thesis, formalin, art portfolios, and finals. And there will always be parties. Class of '81: "This one's for you!!!"

First, during the time that elapses between schooling, an individual's interests may change. This time may serve as an opportunity to discover which specific field suits him. Another important reason is that very often once one is employed by a company, that company will pay for him to go back to school.

Not all undergraduates move into graduate school and not all psychology majors breed rats to run through mazes for the rest of their lives, so it is helpful to know that there are diverse occupations available in each major field. English majors may pursue a career as a writing consultant for a business, work in government services, public relations or publishing. Fine arts majors may enter fields from painting to publishing to business and management training. Psychology majors can help the mentally handicapped or teach. Some Beaver psychology majors have gone into law school.

History Honors Hosts Conference

By Cheryl Baisden

Beaver College will host the Eastern Pennsylvania Regional Conference of Phi Alpha Theta, the International History Honorary Society, on Saturday, February 18th. The purpose of this conference, which will be attended by faculty and students from 29 colleges and universities, will be to hear student papers.

The activities of the morning session will be open only to Society members; however the afternoon session is open to all interested Beaver students. The afternoon activities include Mr. Lloyd presentations which begin at 2:00 in various rooms in Boyer Hall. During this session two Beaver students will present their papers. Senior Lisa Wasser will present a paper entitled "Jews, Americans, and the Holocaust: The problems of American Jews, 1942-1943," and Raghendra Chauhan, a junior, will discuss "Kautalya and Machiavelli".

Students are encouraged to attend the conference; interested students should contact Dr. Gerald Belcher numbers for student presentations.

For students interested in gaining membership in Phi Alpha Theta, the Society is open to all undergraduates, regardless of major, who meet the minimum academic requirements. Students must have had at least three history courses in which a 3.1 grade is attained and a grade point average of at least 3.0 in the remainder of their courses. The current Beaver College members are: Cathy Foedisch, Jaci Goldrosen, Nora O'Dowd, Elizabeth Close, Barbara Vaughan, Lisa Wasser, Raj Chauhan, Teresa O'Dowd, Paula Webster, Sharon Salazar and Mark Wuller.

Today I want to do things to be doing them, not to be doing something else. I do not want to do things to sell myself on myself. I don't want to do nice things for people so that I will be "nice." I don't want to work to make money, I want to work to work.

*Today I don't want to live for,
I want to live.*

My prayer is:

I will be what I will be

And I will do what I will do. All I want to do, need to do, is stay in rhythm with myself. All I want is to do what I do and not to try to do what I don't do. Just do what I do. Just keep pace with myself. Just be what I will be.

"I will be what I will be"-But I am now what I am. And here is where I will spend my energy. I need all my energy to be what I am today. Today I will work in rhythm with myself and not with what I "should be." And to work in rhythm with myself I must keep tuned into myself. God revealed his name to Moses, and it was: I am what I am.

Better think awhile
Or I may never think again
If this were the last day of your life, my friend,
Tell me, what do you think you would do then?

Stand up to the blow that fate has struck upon you,
Make the most of all you still have coming to you, or
Lay down on the ground and let tears run from you,
Crying to the grass and trees and heaven finally on your knees.

Let me live again, let life come find me wanting.
Spring must strike again against the shield of winter.
Let me feel once more the arms of love surround me,
Telling me the danger's past, I need not feel the icy blast again.

Stiteler Chapel Opens Doors

By Cheryl Baisden

What is now Stiteler Memorial Presbyterian Chapel was once the hayloft of the barn on the William Welsh Harrison estate. Once the Harrison estate became the property of Beaver College the hayloft was converted into a chapel, seating 788. In January of this year reconstruction was begun on the chapel with the final product being completed toward the end of the summer.

This renovation, including removal of the stage, a new floor, 400 new seats and all new equipment, was made possible by gifts secured by Pres. D. Gates. The $100,000 $114,000 v the Prest (from the Stiteler, a The final gift sound and pi

Invasion of the Body Lice

No, it isn't the title of one of those B grade science fiction flicks. It's a very real panic that has the students of Dilworth Hall literally climbing the walls. If you've recently had the un-controllable urge to scratch, itch or scream, you might be one of those poor unfortunates stricken with that irritating and somewhat embarrassing infestation known as pubic lice, more commonly referred to by degenerates and low-lives as "crabs".

Beaver College NORML held its second successful Open House/Meeting on Thursday night, October 9.

Discussed were upcoming social activities such as the Makooch Band Party to be held on Saturday, October 18, 1980. This event is co-sponsored by SPB. Educational topics discussed included the 1980 elections - the candidates and their stand on the issue of marijuana, and the use of marijuana in the field of medicine. Everyone warmed up on hot cocoa and marshmallows, and doughnuts were enjoyed by all.

Also, NORML will be showing three films on Thursday night, November 6 in Murphy Hall. The flicks include Buster Keaton (1922), Charlie Chaplin (1925) and W.C. Fields (1930). In addition, Beaver College NORML t-shirts are on sale.
